

Thames Water Court Case on Monday February 3rd about its possible restructuring and £3Bn loan

This is a complex but nationally important legal case - what should happen when a Water Company is likely to go bankrupt?

It is an important case for ALL water companies, whatever their current balance sheets, as the public concern about cleaning up our rivers grows.

Some simple independent facts are presented in this WASP blog

A very recent update is here.

The outcome of the case may influence Thames Water and the whole industry towards becoming the sort of businesses that operate in the public interest.

NAG:

- is involved in non-party-political campaigning to make the case for clean rivers and effective waste-water management.
- is a member of the Sewage Campaign Network The Sewage Campaign Network . founded by our colleagues at the Ilkley Clean River Group Ilkley Clean River Group

We would like local citizens to be aware of the issues, and current activities - National as well as local.

I am sure this will be one of the many topics raised at our drop-in Public Meeting on Tuesday 25th February in Knaresborough - to look at plans for the river Nidd

See You There!
